Does Green Construction have a Payback for Homeowners?

Is it hype or is it another tool in the Remodeler's belt?

Jennifer A. Senick, executive director of the Rutgers Center for Green Building, will present the results of recent research on the costs and benefits of investments in residential energy efficiency in New Jersey. Also, the effects of energy-efficiency investments on the resale value of homes.

Usher in Spring...and St. Paddy's Day...and hear about the new Green Guidelines developed for the Garden State

Jennifer Senick, MA, is the Executive Director of the Rutgers Center for Green Building at the Edward J. Bloustein School of Urban Planning and Policy Development, Rutgers University. She is an experienced urban planner specializing in Building Life Cycle Analysis, Building Performance Evaluation and Occupancy Survey research.
